The Sydney Morning Herald.

The Parliament of South Australia is gaged in discussing a proposal submitted by the Government for introducing the principle of direct taxation, the scheme being a tax of sixpence in the pound on all rent estate, and incomes from other sources than from landed property, with a minimum finit in each case of thirty pounds per annum. The rate proposed is about one-half of the average municipal rate, and will not as now proposed prove oppressive, as the income anticipated from the land tax is not more at present than £55,000. It is proper in imposing such a tax in the first but how was not made so clear, as a higher is proper in imposing such a tax in the first estance that the amount should be mode-duty would certainly tend to reduce consumpbecause all fixed charges act as a deduction from the capital value. If a tax grows as the capital value grows, then the increment of value makes good the loss from the tax; and it is always desirable to make every new impost derange matters as little as possible. It is impossible for any Treasurer to come down upon the community with any new tax without deranging some calculations. In time of great crises, when the public need is urgent. individual interests have to give way. In South Australia at the present moment the Treasurer is not in any distress for want of funds, and the changes he is making are rather with a view to re-distribute the incidence of taxation than of increasing the amount. Under such circumstances it would be a mistake to put on a heavy land tax in the first instance, as it would operate as an immediate reduction of values pro tanto. It is more equitable to begin with the smallest amount that is worth collecting, and increase it gradually to the desired maximum. Another advantage of trying to experiment on a limited scale at first is that it gives an opportunity of getting the machinery into working order, so that any inequalities and irregulariies which may turn up will be so small as to limit the amount of injustice, and the correction can be applied before any great wrong is done. Direct taxes are not so simple to manage as indirect. In the case of Customs duties, the principal thing is to prevent smug-gling, and in the case of ad valorem duties to unfair valuations. There is room for a good deal of dispute as to the valuation of property, especially when it is unproductive only slightly productive, or when it is close to the boundary line between a paying and an exempted value. In the case of an income tax, the complications are undoubtedly many and great. Fixed incomes are simple enough to deal with, but where they arise from commercial transactions of a speculative character, and of rapidly fluctuating results, it is often difficult to state fairly the amount due to the State. In England there is a special board of commissioners to deal with the mat-

The was to induce the growth of beet in large quantities, and to effect this object it was considered necessary to grant State assistance of beet sugar by underselling the British energy, and deprives it of manufacturer, and eventually so crippling to follow its natural bent." him as to give the loat-sugar market in Britain over to the French exporter. That these bountles did affect the sugarretining indestry of England there can be no doubt, but not to the extent affirmed by the manufacturer. The matter was, however, sufficiently important to excite consulerable agitation for special legislation on the subject, or negotiations that might lead to the abolition of foreign bounties. Deputation waited upon the Government, and produced statistics intended to prove the ruin that was soon to overtake the hitish manufacturers of this article, if they were subjected to unfair competition with manufacturers who received State ropport, and whose product was admitted into England on a very low duty scale. The Government made no sign. But at length Mr. Riverie, M.P., succeeded in securing the impositions. Subsequent events, not to say the mounced them in severe language as free-trade innositions. Subsequent events, not to say the appointment of a Select Committee of the House of Commons "to inquire into the effects upon the home and colonial sugar industries of the country by the system of taxations, drawbacks, and bounties on the exportation of sugar now in force in foreign countries," and the final report of this committee was submitted about twelve months ago. In the monatime some colonies producing raw sugar admission of bounty-manufactured sugars, and an endeavour was made by their advocates to tion. Nevertheless, they were quite as eager for a countervailing impost as was the British manufacturer, and petitions were sent to Parliament in favour of it. The committee reported that "they felt themselves precluded from recommending the adoption of a countervailing duty," and declared "that the

In his speech in the Budget debate, Mr. BERRY stated that the Excise duties on tobacco and beer which he carried did not appear to him to be which he carried did not appear to him to be oppressive to any one, and no one appeared seriously to object to them. When the time came for remitting taxation he did not think that these were the duties which would first call for removal. At the present Government has continued these duties, and as the late opposition always supported them, there would seem to be a combination of all three parties in their tayour. If that is the case, they may be looked upon as fixtures for a considerable time at least, for there is no probability nomeed them in severe language as free-trade impositions. Subsequent events, not to say the measurements of office, seem to have converted him and what he once cursed he now blesses. He has passed through many changes of opinion at the constitutional question, and it is possible that he may exhibit os great a variety on matter financial. What, however, most interests us it the contrast between the apparent unanimity of opinion in Victoria as to the policy of Excise, and the absence of similar unanimity in New South Wales. Twice have Treasurers proposed those duties to our Assembly, and backed up the proposal by very strong arguments, and twice has the Assembly refused its sanction. Will the time come here as in Victoria, when public opinion generally will ver round in support of those duties, and when the foresight of the Treasurers who have proposed them will be vindicated? As to the soundness of the policy embodied in them, and their adaptation them will be vindicated? As to the soundhise of the policy embodied in them, and their adaptation to our fiscal requirements, we have no doubt; but it takes a long while for a true fluancial policy to be fully appreciated, and while we get so much money from the land, it is impossible to get the public to take much interest in facal questions.

cluded from recommending the adoption of a countervailing duty," and declared "that the only carian mode of altogether abolishing bounties is manufacturing and refining under excise supervision; "It is emphatically asserted that this is the only effectual way of at one stopping bounties.

In the present controversy relating to fair trade and reciprocity this bounty question has been made the prominent one by advocates for an alteration in the sizeal policy of Ingland, and is really the thin end of the protective wedge. The most extrawagant estimates were paraded of the amount of injury the sugar-retining interest had suffered through the operation of free trade principle, particularly by the Workmen's Executive Committee for the Abolition of Foreign Sugar Bonaties. It will be instructive to give the statement of this committee, Thoy say that the bounties have not only reduced the produce of our reflueries by 150,000 tons of loaf-sugar per annum, and thrown 10,000 men out of work, but have also stopped a progressive increase in our manufacture of the same article, which had it been allowed to proceed would have given employement to S000 more men instead of 10,000 less. The Argus, in noticing the gratifying fact that Australian exhibitions have promoted a love of fine art in the colonies, remarks that they have also led come of the exhibitors to consign to Mr. Fletcher, of Melbourne, a number of oil paintings and water-colour drawings. The latter include some choice examples by W. Cellow, S.P.W.C., whose "Market Place in Padua" was so much admired in the British Court. The oil paintings include two levely female heads by Brooks Lagos, R.H.A.; a fine sea piece, "Coming into Port," representing a lugger running into the harbour of Honfleur, with a black training into the harbour of Honfleur, with a black squall coming up in the offing, by J. C. Webb, the painter of "Rotterdam:" a couple of clever mirrios subjects by A. Montague; a Spaniah lady by Hayans williams, whose picture of the "Roundlings" extraoted so much attention in the Exhibition; two children's beads by C. Bauerie, possessing the same pleaning characteristics as those which were hung in the British court; and several landscapes and sea pieces by artists of reputs. Among the former special mention decerves to be made of a pair entitled "Morning and Evening in Bavaria." by L. Langhow, who belongs to the same school as Munthe, and obtains not less remarkable effects by similar methods. Both pictures are painted with equal dash and vigour, and the result is impressive in the extreme. There is also a straing fagure piece by W. M. Egley, illustrative of the 12th scene in the third act of Moliere's "L'Ayure," where Cleants presents the ring to Mariane at the pretended desire of his father, who is endeavouring to

A non of from 15 to 16 larrikins (the Atgus says) stacked and damaged the Moonee Ponds omnibus about midnight on September 26. Michael Slattery, the driver, states that when opposite Ablotaford-street, on the Flemington-road, on his way to Moonee Ponds, he was surrounded by the larrikins, who howled, and attempted to stop the omnibus, but he drove on quickly. They then threw a quantity of road-metal at the omnibus, breaking the windows and striking one of the passengers on the head. A short time previously the Melbourne omnibus was stopped by the same larrikins, but the driver, Clark, was told that he was not the man wanted, and was allowed to proceed not the man wanted, and was sliowed to proceed anmolected. It is thought that the pourts purposed robbing the omnibus; but, finding their design frustrated by the driver whipping up his horses, they took to stoning him out of revenge.

MASONIC HALL.

The Mendelssohn Quints its Club seems likely to attain here the success which it so thoroughly deserves, for not only was there a large and critical audience at the Masonic Hall on Saturday night—when the first of a series of seven concerts was given—but this audience manifested unequivocally its satisfaction with the programme. The application of the severy number was of that hearty and spontaneous nature which shows unmistakably when a performance has been enjoyed; and, indeed, encores were so frequent during the first part, of the programme that Mr. Thomas Ryan—"the father of the dub"—had finally to explain that no more could be allowed. Already the programme had been lengthened very much, and had the audience had its way, and every selection been followed by an attra one, either the entertain much, and had the audience had its way, and avery selection been followed by an axtra one, either the entertainment would have been prolonged to a vary late hour, or a few of the advertised numbers would have had to be cut out. Those enthusiasts who had been so carried away by admiration as to desire the duplication of overything, had, after this, the good sense not to press their demands, and so the concert came to a close at a reasonable hour. The artists thoroughly deserved the flattering, if somewhat injudicious, compliment paid them, for their programme provided music of sufficiently high character to suit the most ardent classicities interprepad with some of the best works of soveral Shrewshury, one of the team that was cognized to visit Australia, has so far yet overest from his recent indisposition as to be due to a secretary the critical company's steam ship Cusco.

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

A large number of persons attended the Queen's Theatro on Saturday night to witness the production of what was described as "Tried and True," an ethirely new and original drama in five sets, founded on actual facts, and written by Mr. Walter Reynolds. The story appeared to be that of a girl who, thrown amongst vicious persons, resists their efforts to reduce her to their immoral plane while her tileftly to virtue exsits her to a sphere in which the quality may be exercised unrestrictedly. Either from faults consequent open a first presentation here by a company perhaps not therotophy acquainted with the details, or from consequent open a first presentation here by a company perhaps not therotophy acquainted with the details, or from constructive weakness, some of the play was marked with incoherence. Much dramatic material of a common kind was also introduced into it. One instance will demonstrate the accuracy of this. It is that of a policeman of the exaggerated type observable in partomismes, and never in real life. Another, however, may be mentioned, which is that of a woman who may be truly regarded as Fagara disgulated in feminine contains, and who instructs girts in crime as the Jow instructed boys. The act of a woman jumping off a bridge, and a travesty upon swelldom as represented by Lord Dundrarry, are also introduced, and with the instance above referred to serve to show that the drama is not altogether original. Excellent scenic arrangements, however, were made, and leading parts were placed in the hands of competent performers, and additional rehearsals may increase the acceptability of the piece here. Mr. Reynolds assumed the part of the hero, and Mias Willis that of the heroine.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, SUNDAY.

An elderly man named William Pillinger, a splitter, residing at Mount Gravatt, left his home during Friday with two horses and a dray, intending to proceed to Brisbane. Not having returned yesterday morning a search was instituted, and the horses attached to the search was instituted, and the horses attached to the dray were found standing outside a paddock. There were blood stains on the dray, and proceeding along the road towards town the searchers found Pillinger's body a short distance off the road with his skull smashed in by some blunt instrument. Pillinger was quite dead. A letter was found in his hat, ovidently written by the murderer, abusing the victim's character. Michael J. Minnis, about 25 years of age, a teacher at Mount Gravatt schoot, was arrested this morning at Pillinger's, where he had been boarding.

2600 arres of land were selected on Thursday. The concrep are turning out well. The weather has been showery but is now fine. GRAFTON, SATURDAY.

Returns furnished by Mr. T. M'Kietrick (Messre, Nipper and See's agent at South Grafton) show that for the month of June, July, and August 15,222 packages were received by their line of steamers alone from Sydney and forwards to the tableland and adjacent country. During the same period 1772 packages, consisting of casks of tailow, bagand ingots of tin, bundles of sheepskins, &c., were received from the same places for shipment by this line of transment and Sudney.

An old resident of Gunning, named Midway, was thrown out of a buggy and killed yesterday. KEMPSEY, SATURDAY. The Greenhill punt was placed in position and was at work to-day. The road on the opposite side from Greenhill is not opened, and so communication with the point was only obtained by trespassing. A heavy hallstorm occurred on the Lower Mackeay last Thursday. In some places the hail lay three inches thick on the ground. Work is proceeding at East Kempsey wharf, which will be rendered approachable shortly.

MINING INTRLLIGENCE. (FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The diamond drill is down 366 feet and now is in soft granite. The drill hole has 70 feet of water in it, but will not rise to the top. The drill is now stopped, owing to the nocessary depth of 350 feet, as arranged with the Government, being bored. The banks purchased largely this afternoon. Several good washings are reported. Tait and party washed, in their own chains, 100 loads, which averaged about 4dwt. No. 4 Deutschor's finished 600 loads, averaging a little over \(\frac{1}{2}\) an oz. Some grand stone has been struck in the Homeward Bound claim, Sebastopol. The reef is four feet wide, and thickly impregnated with gold. Frenchman's got to-day over 100cs, from three machines, Hidden Treasure is still washing over 2cs. to the load.
